From the Director/CEO

At DRTC, we want to know what is keeping you or someone you know from reaching an employment goal. It can be that you need additional support, specialized training, to build work experience for a resume, or simply the opportunity to prove your skills. If that’s true, it’s possible DRTC could be the right start for you.

We provide professional, on-the-job training and support. If you have a disability or a limiting condition such as a significant learning disability, hard of hearing, anxiety disorder, clinical depression, intellectual disability, or Aspergers’, DRTC could be the resource you’ve been looking for. Many of our positions are specifically for people who experience barriers to employment.

We want to see you reach your job goals. At least give us a call and find out how you might begin your journey; for either, the first time after graduation, or after you’ve met with a few roadblocks.

Everyone needs a place to make a successful start in employment and DRTC ‘is a great place to be from.’

*to provide only a few examples.

DRTC: PROVIDING EMPLOYMENT SINCE 1953

DRTC (aka Dale Rogers Training Center) is a private nonprofit that specializes in employment serving the Oklahoma City metro and surrounding areas. DRTC provides job training, placement services, and direct employment for nearly 1,000 people per year; approximately 800 of those people have a disability or limiting condition.

In 2020-2021, people with disabilities in all DRTC programs and employment earned $5.3 million in wages as an essential workforce in Oklahoma.

Derek’s Story

In 1992, a young, single father of two small sons was in a precarious situation. Like most parents, he needed a job so he could support his children. The hitch? Derek Burton has limitations which affect his mobility and ability to stand. But not his spirit or determination.

That was until one day when his vocational rehabilitation counselor told him about a cashier position for a new Food Service contract set aside for DRTC on Tinker Air Force Base through the AbilityOne Program. This created a confluence of circumstances which led to the impossible becoming possible for a man whose biggest dream was to be able to send his sons to college.

Career Advancement Opportunities

The goal of every cook is to become an executive chef or one day own their own business. The training received at Vanwey advances culinary experience and exposes the Sr. Cook to the business side of restaurant operations. Management at Vanwey also provides training in leadership/management philosophies, business ethics, mediation and conflict resolution, scheduling, menu planning, purchasing, and production. The skills taught at Vanwey provide a foundation for multiple positions in the restaurant industry, including Executive Chef, General Manager, Regional Manager, and owner/operating ventures.

“The atmosphere at Vanwey strives to provide a successful learning environment for those who wish to come on board. The goal is simple, to provide training, professional experience, and personal growth to each employee”

– Jason Lee, MA
Contract Manager
Vanwey Dining
Custodial Training Programs

New employees are given extensive training in technical skills, safety standards, and security. Each employee completes training before starting hands-on work. The contract cleaning standards are clearly defined and outlined in the numerous task trainings.

The goal of the program is to equip the employee with an understanding of the work environment and the ability to complete assigned tasks to specific cleaning standards.

The training methods are designed to address various learning styles and use pictorial checklists, color-coding, and other accommodations for comprehending the material.

The pace of training also adjusts to accommodate the speed of the employee’s processing and learning.

The training program is continually evaluated and updated with the most current methodology. The process overall encourages co-worker and team bonding. Sessions are interactive and informative.

Food Service Training Programs

New employee training provided for the first week of work includes hard-skills, safety, and policy instruction. Structured ongoing on-the-job training provided throughout employment.

The Jr. Cook to Sr. Cook training utilizes a culinary based leadership and skills training assessments to identify capability for advancement. The training and testing process requires fifteen academic requirements regarding culinary history, brigade structure, herb/spice identification, recipe scaling, and kitchen measurement conversions. The second part of the assessment requires knife skills demonstrations, fabrication of the four basic meats, fruit and vegetable processing. The third and final part of the assessment requires the creation of five recipes using the baking, frying, stewing, braising, and grilling techniques.
How to Qualify as a Person with a Disability or Limiting Condition

DRTC specializes in employment for people with a disability or limiting condition by providing great jobs through our federal contracts. Certain Custodial and Food Services positions are set-aside specifically to employ people who qualify for the program.

Not all positions require people to qualify as a person with a disability or limiting condition, but these contracts, through SourceAmerica®, are a highly disability-inclusive workforce. DRTC provides enhanced access, accommodations, and training for people who have a disability or limiting condition who want to be successful in employment.

The following is a description of the SourceAmerica® definition and requirements for documentation of disability or limiting condition on the DRTC AbilityOne™ contracts:
